A GREAT GAME OF CHECKERS.

BY G. W. ROSE.

Copywright, 1896, by G. W. Rose.

"Play checkers, Schoolmaster?"

"Oh, yes; I play checkers."

The tone betrayed the rash confidence of youth, but the old farmer met it with a serene smile, born of the memory of many victories.

"Hattie, bring that checkerboard. What kind of a game do you play, Teacher, side or centre?"

"I don't understand your terms," replied the schoolmaster, "but I play the regular openings, and then gauge my play according to my opponent's play."

"Well, I'll be switched!" exclaimed the farmer. "I always thought checkers was checkers the world over, but I never heard of openings, nor gauges nuther."

"I see your board is not numbered," said the teacher. Do you object to my marking the numbers with a pencil?"

"Mark all you want to, Schoolmaster," replied the hilarious farmer. "Put a sum in mental 'rithmetic in the middle, an' algebra 'round the edges. Turn the board over, an' write out some examples in bot'ny an' hist'ry on the back of 'er! Can't hurt the board any! Ernest, git some of that cider."

After the farmer had won four games in succession, he said to his son: "Here, Ernest, you come an' play with the schoolmaster. This ain't exciting enough for me. I'll go an' set by the fire an' think!"

Ten minutes later Ernest said: "Well, father, this may be fun for you, but it's rather monotonous for me. You'd better play with Hattie, Schoolmaster. You may get a game occasionally, if she's good natured."

So the teacher and his oldest pupil played together. But the memory of certain caustic remarks anent the afternoon's algebra recitation rankled in the young girl's bosom, and she showed him no mercy. She forced his pieces into unprofitable corners; she coaxed him after apparently unprotected "single men," only to slaughter the pursuer, and at last in completing an innocent looking combination, swept the board time and again.

Looking up in the midst of the fifth game he became conscious that their normal conditions were reversed. He knew that his face was flushed, and his brows in a tangle, while she was watching him with a cool, amused smile.

"What are you thinking of?" he asked.

"I am thinking of algebra," she answered demurely. "It does seem" —she gave him a "man"—"as though checkers"—she gave him two more—"was so much easier," and she swept the board.

When the teacher retired that night he registered a vow that he would beat that girl at checkers, even if he had to give up his school and devote his whole time to studying the game. He lay awake a long time, gazing at the bare rafters above his bed, silver gray in the moonlight that streamed through his uncurtained window, and thinking of this remarkable checker-playing family. He remembered the jovial old man's way of pretending to be in extreme fear, and how he would ejaculate: "Ah! now you've got me!" "Look at that, now! I never expected that." "Now, you have got me," &c., and the way his knotty hand would hover over the board in simulated uncertainty.

He remembered Ernest keeping up a laughing conversation with his mother, and apparently not paying any attention to the game. He remembered Hattie, always watching him with that keen, amused smile, and moving her pieces with swift, sliding touch of a slim, white hand. Then he wondered why he had never noticed her hands before. Also, he remembered a certain vivid color in her cheeks, and wondered if it showed the same by daylight.

It may have been a week after this evening that Edna Bristol, Hattie's pretty but dull seat-mate, found the day too short for her lessons, and had to "stay after school." Hattie obtained permission to wait for her, and after every one else was gone she said to the teacher:

"I think you have a checker-board here, Mr. Field. Won't you show me how to play by numbers?"

The schoolmaster rather shamefacedly got out his board and his books: "Rudiments of Draughts," "Spayth," and "Robertson," and they played games and variations by the dozen. And pretty Edna seemed to find the atmosphere conducive to study, for she mastered the grammar lesson thoroughly.

The next day Edna said:

"Teacher, I can study after school better than any other time. May I stay tonight?" And so the program was extended.

Now a young man cannot play checkers with a pretty girl night after night without coming to give fully as much attention to her as to the game; consequently the schoolmaster felt as though a great blank spot had moved into his life one afternoon when Hattie, without looking at him, left the house immediately at the close of school.

The following afternoon a big, fresh-faced young fellow, whom the schoolmaster had never before seen, called for Hattie, and took her driving in a very dashing equipage. Edna volunteered an explanation after school. "That's Bill Keeler," she said. "He's Hattie's beau, and he wants her to get married. His mother has promised to give him the farm if he'll get a wife before Christmas."

This news threw the schoolmaster into the sulks. The young farmer visited the school, being received with bashful cordiality by the "big boys and girls," and with cold civility by the teacher. He took Hattie to the Thursday evening singing school, and was driving her and Edna every day.

This week was one of misery for the schoolmaster, though his checker board was some consolation. But sitting alone in the darkening schoolroom while the snow whirled high around the windows he would imagine that vivid face, lit by great luminous eyes, opposite him. Or, as he looked from book to board, he would see the swift flash of a slim, white hand above his own.

The week ended at last, and the young farmer returned to his home.

"He's coming again Christmas," Edna said to the schoolmaster.

Monday evening Hattie stayed after school was dismissed, bending a flushed face over a perfectly recited algebra lesson. After a long silence the schoolmaster said, with stiff dignity:

"I am glad, Miss Bates, that you still retain some interest in your studies."

There was no answer.

"I fail to see," persisted the teacher, "what there is so remarkable in that young fellow that he should take up all your time."

Still no answer.

"Come, tell me, Miss Bates, what on earth he is noted for."

She looked up sideways into his face. "Pa says," she answered gravely, "that he is the best checker player in the county!"

"Can he beat me?"

The question meant a good deal. With a reckless flash of her great gray eyes, and dropping into the Michigan country dialect, which the schoolmaster had labored months to eradicate, she answered:

"Um-huh! Beat the boots off'm you!"

The schoolmaster was furious. He took the checker board and flung it into the stove. The books were about to follow, when he felt a little hand laid on his arm, and turning saw Hattie, with tears in her eyes. "Don't!" she said. "I should be lonesome without — without the books!"

The schoolmaster dropped the books and kissed his pupil.

Then the little hypocrite assumed an air of mighty dignity, and said: "The school laws don't allow that form of punishment!"

"Are you going to marry that fellow?" he asked peremptorily.

"I don't know."

"Will you marry me?"

With a droll little smile she replied:

"If you please, Mr. Field, that isn't in today's lesson."

As that was all the satisfaction he could get, he went to consult with her father.

"Well, Schoolmaster," said the old gentleman finally, "Hattie has explained the hull thing to me. When Bill is here she thinks she likes him best, and when you're here she sort o' cottons to you most. Now, why don't you and him play a game of checkers to decide it—winner take the girl—eh?"

"I agree to that," replied the teacher.

The proposition was submitted to Hattie, and she, after some consideration, accepted it.

"Now, you mustn't take no advantage of Bill," said the farmer. "He's comin' Christmas Eve, an' we'll have the game then, an' then, an' the weddin' afterward. You mustn't keep Hattie after school, nor come to see her till then."

The schoolmaster got a new checker board that night, and every evening he studied alone, carefully noting the moves of the great games in his books.

"Science will tell," he said to himself. "These games were played by champions, and the results are certain as fate."

At last the day came, at 5 o'clock the schoolmaster went to the Bates residence.

There was a jolly crowd of neighbors present. The old house was overflowing. Preparations were going on in the kitchen, and the smell of roast turkey and coffee was everywhere.

The minister was there—a nervous little man in an uncomfortable black suit. The teacher's rival came a few minutes later.

Then farmer Bates took the floor. "Neighbors and friends," he began oratorically. "I s'pose you know that the schoolmaster and Bill Keeler here are goin' to play a game of checkers for my girl Hattie. Now, I'll 'point Dave Nash an' Uncle Tommy Bilk to be empires, an' you all understand that if any one makes any suggestion on the game it'll all have to be played over. The weddin'll be right after the game, an' then we'll have supper. Place your men, empires!"

The rivals were seated, and the board placed between them.

"Here, Hattie," the farmer called, "you set here where they can both see, an' then they'll know what they're playin' for."

Hattie gave a timid greeting to the two young men, and took the seat indicated. Then the great game began.

The schoolmaster played slowly, relating every move to some game played by the old champions. Keeler played with a dash that had carried him victor in countless contests.

The spectators crowded around them, breathless at first, then as the game slowly progressed making whispered comments. One of the older women sang a little softly, and some one in the background whistled part of a popular air. The "empires" watched the board closely.

It was a great game, and it is a pity that a record of the moves was not kept. When the thirtieth move was made, the old farmer blurted out: "By gum! 't'll be a draw!"

Now, the schoolmaster, who was playing the black, was preparing to move 1—5, for his thirty-first move. His hand hovered over the piece, but still he hesitated. Just then Hattie began whistling a queer little tune.

Much surprised, the schoolmaster paused.

"Well, Hattie, that is the dumdest tune I ever heard," said her father.

"That tune," replied Hattie slowly and distinctly, "has fifty-nine variations."

The schoolmaster was just touching the piece, but that word "variations" stopped him. He stole a quick glance at her, but she was looking resolutely at the carpet.

"Must be the tune the old cow died on," laughed the farmer. "Which variation was you whistlin'?"

"I was whistling the fourteenth variation," she answered.

The strong color surged up over the schoolmaster's pale face. "The Laird and Lady" had fifty-nine variations given in his book, and there on the board before him was the identical situation that he and Hattie had noticed and studied in the fourteenth variation.

Now he remembered Wyllie's wonderful play of 16—20' and black to win.

Holding his breath, he made the move.

"Lost the game, Schoolmaster!" shouted the old farmer, but the schoolmaster controlled the moves.

Again 14—23, and every checker player started in amazement. Again 20—27, and then it slowly dawned on them that the teacher had won the game by a series of remarkable moves.

One more move, and then the piece on 2 went the "long jump," removing three pieces and winning the game.

The players rose, and the people crowded around the successful one, with hearty congratulations.

Bill Keeler slipped into the hall unobserved, and after putting on his great overcoat, cap, and huge lambskin mittens, made his way out and started for the stables. As he passed the kitchen door Edna came out and stopped him.

"Going home, Mr. Keeler?" she asked.

"Yes; I haven't anything to stay for," he answered.

"You'll be lonesome drivin' that twelve miles, all alone," said Edna sympathetically.

"Yes," he answered, "considerin' that I expected to take some one with me, it'll be dum' lonesome!"

The contrast between that moonlit drive, as he had pictured it to himself, and as it would now be, struck him with full force. He pulled his cap over his eyes. His vocabulary was not extensive:

"Dum' it!" he said; and it is doubtful if any fate could have got more than that from him.

"I'm awful sorry for you, Billy," said Edna, softly, and then he saw that the pretty, foolish creature was crying.

She had thrown a white woolen "diamond-dusted" thing over her head, and her blond hair blew around her face. The sparkling moonlight fell on snow crystals, diamond dust, and tears, making dazzling brilliants of all.

Bill Keeler's mind moved slowly, but when she repeated "I'm awful sorry," he realized that sympathy is a blessed thing. He took her hand —she slipped into his arms.

The small boy who saw this scene from a "proscenium box" behind the rain barrel, could never go on from here in his report. "They stood so close together 't I couldn't see what they were doin'," he said afterward, "an' they jest whispered."

"Where on earth is Bill Keeler?" asked Farmer Bates.

"Guess he's gone home," suggested Uncle Tommy.

"Don't let him go!" exclaimed the hospitable farmer. "Here, Ernest, you run and'——" the kitchen door opened, and there in the doorway stood Bill Keeler with his arm around Edna.

"I come for a wife, an' by jing! I guess I got one," was all he said.

There was a double wedding and a supper to be remembered.

Sometimes, in these later days, when Prof. Field finds his wife's country wit too sharp for him, he says:

"You know you really proposed to me, for if you hadn't helped me to win that game you would have married Billy."

To which she replies sedately: "It was purely my interest in checkers, dear. I couldn't bear to see a good game lost by a foolish move," —New York Sun.

She Almost Proposed.

A young married woman, the wife of a Western Congressman, was one of a party in Washington the other evening talking about leap year. "I proposed to my husband," said she, "and it wasn't leap year and I'm not a new woman." Every one was anxious to hear how she happened to do it, for she is a lovely woman of the womanly type, and the last one in the world to ever ask a man to marry her. Then, too, she was a belle, and had hosts of admirers, many of whom would have been glad to have won her.

"Why, I don't know how it happened. You see, Jack had been attentive to me for years, and every little while would tell me how much he loved me, and ask me if I could care for him. I put him off, and then after two or three years he began to neglect telling me of his love. In the mean while I learned to love him, and tried in every way to make him speak, but when he called he never wanted to see me alone, and always tried to have some of the family about. When we were alone he was moody and silent, and no amount of sweetness on my part would bring him to another avowal. At last he called and said that he was going to Washington; that there was no use of his staying out west. There were no ties to hold him,

THE POOR HAVE TO PAY THE BIG PRICES.

A writer in a recent issue of the New York Herald thus tells how the poor have to pay exorbitant prices for some of the necessaries of life:

Ten dollars a ton is a high price for coal, but that is what the unfortunate poor, who can at one time purchase only a small quantity of the necessities of life, have to pay for it.

"Ten cents a pail," answered an Italian dealer in coal, wood and ice, who occupies a dark basement on the poorest part of Second avenue, in answer to my question. I paid ten cents, took a pail of the coal to a scale and found that it weighed 19 pounds. At that rate the poor who have to buy coal in such small quantities—and thousands in the city have to—pay more than ten dollars a ton. The man of moderate means who has a coal house convenient to his apartment pays less than one-half of that amount, while the man of wealth, with a commodious cellar, who in summer lays in his winter supply, buys coal at a much smaller price.

Then the man of means, for his kindling wood, pays less than half what it costs the poor, who pay five cents for three of the diminutive bundles sold in their neighborhood. Measurement shows that one of these bundles contains 243 cubic inches, on which basis a cord costs $16.

The persons who pay these extravagant prices, and who buy potatoes in small quantities, when they are fortunate enough to have a few cents, pay five cents a quart, or $1.60 a bushel, while the man of means can lay in a supply for less than one-half that price.

From one of the small dealers I purchased five cents' worth of ice, and found that it was just one-fourth of the weight of the piece that my dealer charges ten cents for.

THE CRY OF "QUAY."

It is predicted with seemingly good reason that the coming convention of the Republicans in Franklin county, will be one of the most exciting that has been known for many years. There is interest in every part of the ticket to be named, but there is special interest in the legislative contest. A few months ago there was an array of factions for and against the "hog combine." That all seemed to pass away when it was known and recognized that Senator Quay had won his fight against Governor Hastings as to the control of the party in Pennsylvania. But now it is revived with much heat and the lines are drawn between Quay and anti-Quay candidates, but strange as it may seem, no one seems to understand what line of principles or deliverances is to be drawn that shall place a candidate in the Quay or the anti-Quay column.

To an independent outsider it looks as though the cry of Quay, or anti-Quay, was raised for effect to influence votes in convention rather than as a matter of principle. What special or particular legislation is Senator Quay likely to want or to oppose that the lines should be drawn on the Quay or anti-Quay standard? There is no such legislation in contemplation or to be considered at the coming session that anybody knows of. The fight between Quay and the Governor last summer was a contest between gangs of politicians and that headed by the Governor seemed to be the more unsavory of the two. That contest and the causes for it are settled and yet the name "Quay" is still used as a conjuring cry. There is really nothing in it. What the people of Franklin county need are good, level-headed men of honest principles, who desire the best good of all their constituents, and have the courage to demand what they conceive to be the people's rights, and maintain them against the encroachments of corporations or other selfish and unpatriotic interests.

To an outsider it doesn't seem that Senator Quay as a personal factor enters at all into the present legislative canvass in Franklin county. The people do not so much desire new laws to be enacted for their supposed benefit as to have men elected who are competent and courageous enough to see that no mischievous laws shall be enacted, that shall work them harm or detriment. It is not needed to have the name of Quay or an opponent of Quay to be used as a conjuring word with which to win victories or seal defeats.

If the individual fitness of the candidates is to be subordinated to the cry for or against Quay, then it will be well for the Democrats—who have no Quay alliances or animosities—to bring out their best men and give the people opportunity to elect them. There are still some honest Democrats.

DIFFERENT PAPERS have differing views upon the matter of giving premiums to increase circulation. The Sunday School Times, the leading paper of its class, circulating in every state and territory of the union and in forty foreign countries, takes a sound journalistic view of the newspaper "premium" question. It says that "the Sunday School Times is its own premium. The publishers believe that it is better to put all the money advisable into the columns of the paper than to cut down on the amount thus expended for the sake of buying and offering premiums. It being a question between a good paper, with good premiums, or the best paper, with no premiums, the latter won the day."

THERE WAS talk in Washington Monday of an effort being made to agree upon a compromise measure by which necessary relief will be afforded the treasury. It is said Senator Gorman has a scheme which contemplates the issue of five hundred millions of three per cent. bonds, to be used in retiring greenbacks, and opening the mints to the free coinage of silver until the amount thus coined aggregates the amount of the greenbacks redeemed. During the day there were numerous conferences on the floor of the senate, and it is supposed they related to the proposed compromise.

IT IS reported that Lord Salisbury has asked President Cleveland to join in a note to the Powers protesting against the treachery of the Porte, and asking that united action be taken to obtain genuine reforms in Armenia. It is also said that he asked the United States to join in a demonstration of the English and American fleets in Turkish waters.

A RESOLUTION was introduced in the New York Assembly Monday night, by Mr. Butts, of New York, urging upon congress to pass a bill to purchase the Island of Cuba. It grows plainer every day that the freedom of Cuba is approaching rapidly and cannot be delayed much longer.

TWO SENATORS from the new state of Utah took their places in the United States senate Monday, making the whole number of members of that body 89. Both are classified as Republicans, and as favoring free coinage.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Clipped and Condensed From Our Exchanges.

A steam fire engine at Cleveland, Ohio, plunged through a drawbridge at Seneca street early Saturday morning. Two men who went down with the engine were rescued, but the horses were drowned.

At a municipal reform meeting in Chicago on Saturday a plan was adopted for the appointment of a committee of one hundred, to act independently of the old parties, in carrying on the movement to divorce politics from municipal affairs.

It is said that putting the feet in hot water will invariably cure headache from whatever cause it arises. The head aches when from any cause the little blood vessels in the brain are too full. Putting the feet in hot water draws the blood from the head.

A Cincinnati despatch says that suit is to be instituted there this week to compel the authorities to place on the tax duplicate all the property in the county owned by the Roman Catholic church and not used as a place of worship. The A. P. A. is said to have instigated the suit.

Israel Miller, aged 68, married, and William Moore, aged 27, married, two section hands, were killed on the Pennsylvania railroad, two miles east of Williamsport, Pa., Friday morning by Erie mail. Miller had $410 in cash in his pocket. His wife, from whom he is separated, is supposed to live in Brooklyn.

A novel enterprise has been started in Middletown, near Belleville, by Christ Detweiler & Co., in the shape of a skunk farm. From the shortness of time in which the proprietors have been engaged in the business, they cannot say whether it will pay. Live skunks are quoted at from 40 to 80 cents, according to size and quality.

A despatch from St. Johns, Newfoundland, says that "the worst snow storm in 20 years" was experienced there during the past four days. Some of the drifts in the streets were 10 feet high and business is at a standstill. The outlying settlements have not been reached for two or three days, owing to the railway lines being blockaded.

A telegram from Ures, Mexico, says that the Yaqui Indians have made another raid upon the settlers in the valley west of there. On one ranch an entire family, consisting of husband and wife and two children, were massacred, and at another place in the same locality the Indians killed two cowbuys who attempted to prevent the driving off of a herd of cattle. There is a large force of Federal troops in the field against the marauders.

The United States civil service commission has ordered that an examination be held by its local board in Lancaster Saturday, March 7, 1896, commencing at 9 o'clock a. m., for the grades of clerk, storekeeper, gauger and storekeeper and gauger in the internal revenue service. Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For clerk, not under 18; for all other positions, not under 21. No application will be accepted unless filed by February 17.

William Gilbert, a saloon keeper of Frederick, Md., was converted two weeks ago at a revival meeting at Frederick, conducted by Rev. A. H. Zimmerman, and gave up his licenses and stock in trade to the minister, the congregation raising $150 to pay him for it. The liquor was taken to a meadow, a hole dug in the ground and the intoxicants poured into it. A large crowd witnessed the ceremony. There is talk of suits for damages to be brought by the owner of the building that Gilbert had leased. The owner claims that Gilbert turned over to Rev. Zimmerman property that did not belong to him.

TOWN AND TOWNSHIP.

The Events of the County as Chronicled by "Review" Correspondents—Summary of the Week's News.

QUINCY.

Obed A. Shockey has partly rented the brick dwelling house at the Nunnery mill from the trustees and will move back into the township before April 1.

The trustees of the Snow Hill society have given the entire management of the Nunnery mill to Emanuel Monn, one of the trustees. He will receive $24 per month for operating the mill. It is said that as soon as David B. Clay, the obliging miller, can secure another position he will leave.

Mrs. Elizabeth, widow of Samuel Small, is very ill at the home of her son-in-law, Aaron B. Good, Small's mill, with a complication of diseases.—Isaac D. Shockey, Quincy, has been confined to his home the past week suffering from severe pains. He has been afflicted with hemorrhages the past few years and has not enjoyed good health. We hope to hear of his speedy recovery.

Saturday last we met our young friend Harvey D. Small, one of our efficient young school directors, and while extending to him the right hand of fellowship noticed an unusually pleasant smile on his face. Inquiry developed the fact that a stranger had made his appearance in his family Monday night of last week. The youngster is a healthy boy who weighed ten pounds at birth.

The Democrats of Quincy met at the Altodale schoolhouse Saturday to nominate a ticket. M. C. Clem called the meeting to order and Geo. B. Beatty was unanimously chosen chairman. Jacob R. Small and Jno. A. McCleary were chosen secretaries and Geo. G. Rock and D. A. Monn tellers. All discharged their duties faithfully. There were cast 183 votes. This ticket was nominated; School directors, Samuel W. Harmon, Jomes H. Knepper; supervisors, William Staley, Benj. F. Cauffman and Elias Hahn; auditor, Peter Whitmore; constable, Jacob Wile; township clerk, Ephraim Brown; judge, first district, H. E. Snyder: inspector, Henry Moats; registration assessor, Jno. M. Cook; judge, second district, E. B. Small; inspector, George C. Heefner; registration assessor, Ezra Wile.

FORT LOUDON.

Among the business visitors to Chambersburg yesterday was William Martin, of Fort Loudon, who left his arm in the Wilderness in Grant's campaign of 1864, to test his devotion to the Union cause.

The grim reaper has been unusually busy among the older people of Fort Loudon and vicinity within the past few weeks. The aged people who have died within a month are: Mrs. Ann Campbell, at Mount Parnell; Miss Mary Little, near Fort Loudon; Mrs. Coyle Seyburn, Mr. and Mrs. Higgins and Mrs. David Vance. All of these were excellent people and well advanced in years, and now their rest is sweet.

The boy baby of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gish, a little less than a year old, died of pneumonia Friday and was buried Sunday. The father and mother have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

The family of Dr. Devor, several of whose members have been quite seriously ill, are gradually but certainly improving, and there is ground for hope that all of them will be restored to their usual health again.

There was something of a disturbance in Fort Loudon on Friday caused by an ugly quarrel among a party of people who live some distance above the village. One of the party was severely cut in the hand.

The schools seem to be getting along very well; teachers and pupils are all working faithfully.

FANNETTSBURG.

Politics have been booming and candidates are our frequent visitors.

Stephen Wineman has started up his sawmill and is doing quite a brisk business in walnut lumber.

Both Democrat and Republican parties held their primary meetings Saturday afternoon and nominated township tickets.

R. W. McAllen, of near town, is going to improve his home by a stream of running water; our townsman, F. Noble, is the contractor.

The sale of the household goods of the late William Scriba took place Saturday.

A local institute was held at Dry Run Saturday, January 25th, and was well attended in the afternoon and at night. The following is the program: Forenoon, devotional exercises, Rev. Thomas Dobbin; address of welcome, Harry Piper; "Responsibility of a Teacher," Miss Lizzie Shearer and Will Bair; intermission. Music; recitation, Miss Mary Kegerreis; "Cooperation of Parent and Teacher," Miss Mollie Bair; "Reviews and Examinations," T. C. Park; "Thoughts After School," Miss Sallie Miller; "Compulsory Education," Miss McKim. Afternoon. Devotional exercises, Rev. Somers; "Morality as a School Requisite," Rev. Dobbin; music, quartet, Misses Maggie and Huldah Devor and Messrs. Park and Piper; "True Relation Between Director and Teacher," D. O. Shearer; intermission; "Our School Sphere," Miss McElheny; address, Mr. Donnelly; select reading, Mr. Johns; duet, Misses Elizabeth and Edith Wolff; general discussion. In the evening we were favored with a lecture by Dr. J. F. Barton, vice principal of the C. V. S. N. S.; he took for his subject, "Elements Essential to Success." He gave quite an interesting talk and it was highly enjoyed by all.

The Farmers Will Meet.

A farmers institute, under the auspices of the State Agricultural Department and the Farmers Association of Franklin county, Pa., will be held in Croft's Hall at Marion, on Friday, February 7, 1896.

Program: 10 a. m.; invocation, Rev. M. S. Romig; music, Marion Quartette; opening address, J. W. Witherspoon; care of harness and vehicles, Dr. J. M. Martin of Mercersburg; questions and answers; adjournment.

Afternoon session, 1 p. m.; music, Quartette; The Apple Tree, Henry Omwake; questions and answers; shade and ornamental trees, Dr. Martin; adjournment.

Evening session, 7 p. m.; solo, Miss Mabel Diehl; Benefits of Farmers' Association, Dr. T. H. Weagly; address, Hon. John Stewart; music, Quartette; adjournment.

A GREAT LECTURE.

It should be noted that Henry Watterson's lecture on "Abraham Lincoln" will take place in Rosedale MONDAY evening, February 3, instead of Tuesday evening, February 4. Please note the change and attend the lecture.

Local Tickets That Have Been Named.

Lurgan township Democrats have made the following nominations: Judge, John F. Woods; inspector, D. C. Rolar; supervisors, Joseph Reed, James Swanger; school directors, C. D. Minehart, J. A. Mowrey; auditors, A. G. Swanger, Isaac Kuhn; constable, Samuel Pisle; township clerk, H. L. Hamilton.

These were made by the Republicans: Judge, Philip Hollar; inspector, J. M. Shearer; supervisors, Joseph Bittinger, John Ocker; school directors, Jacob Foust, S. Snoke; auditor, B. F. Jones; constable, Jacob Seilhamer; township clerk, S. A. Harvey.

Hamilton Democrats have named this ticket: Judge, Daniel T. Ritter; inspector, Wesley Baughman; supervisors, John Goss, Jere Harrison and John Albert; constable, Wm. F. Bard; school directors, W. A. Reed, J. H. Blair; auditor, H. J. Shuman; township clerk, Wm. E. Noble; justice of the peace, H. C. Snider.

The Republicans of Hamilton township have this one: Judge, James Shields; inspector, David Parker; supervisors, Amos Sollenberger, J. B. Hoover, Wm. Etter; school directors, Joseph Bomberger, A. S. Ryder; auditor, Denton Patterson; township clerk, J. H. Shank.

The Democrats of St. Thomas township on Saturday nominated the following ticket: Judge, John A. Sellers; inspector, Levi Harrison; school directors, A. C. Foust, Emanuel Shatzer; supervisors, George Byers, Andrew Lohr, John Shedron; constable, Wm. M. Grove; auditor, Reuben Byers; township clerk, John T. Graham; Justice of the peace, John F. Gelwicks.

The Democrats of Fannett—Dry Run district,—have the following ticket: Judge, Edward Holden, inspector, W. Shoop; supervisor, Geo. M. Shetler; school director, W. D. Wolff; assessor, Amos M. Piper; constable, N. W. Rouse; auditor, W. N. Pilgrim; township clerk, Wm. Barclay.

The Republicans of the same district have this one: Judge, West C. Skinner; inspector; G. E. Starliper; assessor, Calvin Neil; supervisor, West McCartney; school director, W. M. Rummell; constable, John C. Skinner; auditor, Filson Burk; township clerk, J. G. Rutherford.

The Republicans of Sulphur Spring district in the same township have named the following: Judge, S. A. Johns; inspector, Snively Miller; supervisor, James Wise; school director, John H. Miller; assessor, S. E. Johns.

The Republicans of Metal township on Saturday made the following nominations: Judge, John Rodeniz; inspector, D. D. Park; supervisors, J. Wilson Witherow, Fremont Wilson; collector, Joseph Lessig; constable, John Woods; auditor, R. M. Miller.

So far as we have been able to learn, the Democrats nominated the following: Judge, W. A. Stinger; supervisors, Benj. Naugle, Abram Rosenberry; school directors, E. J. Cox, Samuel StClair; collector, Philip Steck; constable, Allen Mort.

Nominated For a Department Office.

At the regular meeting of Housum Post, G. A. R., on Tuesday evening, Capt. W. H. H. Mackey, Past Commander, was unanimously presented as the choice of the Post for Senior Vice Commander of the Department. It is to be hoped that Capt. Mackey will be elected at the annual encampment in June next, to the position for which he has been named. All the G. A. R. Posts in this section of the state will doubtless give him a cordial support.

MONEY SAVERS

It's all nonsense paying two or three prices for Christmas goods or anything else for that matter just because it is Christmas.

The fact that you are generous is no reason why we should be less so.

We sell Christmas goods at the same profits you pay for any other kind any other time.

You will find our prices are money savers these days and our store a money saving institution when everybody is on the make.

We don't work for your confidence eleven months in the year and trick you now. We don't do business that way.

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

Mrs. Moody, the mother of the great preacher, Dwight L. Moody, died at her home in Northfield, Mass., several days ago at the age of 91 years.

The Gettysburg electric railway company is involved in a suit instituted by the Attorney General of Pennsylvania for two years' state taxes. The amount in arrears is about $2700.

D. S. Hart, of Mercersburg, fell to the bottom of a well in that place on Tuesday, a distance of 25 or 30 feet. He was promptly rescued and suffered only slightly from his dangerous fall.

The new creamery company at Williamson is getting ready for business. The machinery is being brought in, a large quantity of ice has been stored and other preparations made to begin work within a few days.

On Saturday the name of Joseph Truman, a colored man, was drawn as juror for the February term of court in Hagerstown. This is the second colored man who has been drawn as a juror in Washington county, Md.

Capt. Jno. C. Gerbig has purchased of D. H. Wenger the meat market on South Second street. The business will be run on business principles and all who patronize the establishment will get the worth of their money in quantity and quality of goods.

Col. R. H. Thomas, of Mechanicsburg, who has been at the head of the annual granger's picnic for years, has been elected President of the National Editorial Association at its late meeting in St. Augustine, Florida. The contest for the election was quite animated.

A. C. Wingert has painted the statue of Benjamin Franklin on the court house cupola. The figure of the late philosopher and statesman looks bright and clear in its suit of clean white. There is nothing at all dingy about the appearance of the old tower now.

W. C. Buck, 18 years of age, of Altoona, was accidentally shot Monday of last week, by Charles Hawksworth. While the latter was handling a 22-calibre revolver it was accidentally discharged, the ball entering Buck's head above the right eye. He died on Thursday.

On Thursday night some person or persons unknown entered the Elliott school house in Middlesex township, Cumberland county, and stole the clock, mirror, articles from the desk of the teacher, Miss Artelie Wilson, and a number of table articles from the scholars' desks.

On Saturday Captain Pratt took the visiting Indian chiefs at the Indian school, Carlisle, and their children who are attending the school, to Steelton and showed them through the steel works. The party were very highly pleased with the sight of the great furnaces, forges, throngs of workmen, etc.

Miss Jessie H. McDonald and Mr. John S. Shade of Shippensburg, will be married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. McDonald, in McConnellsburg, on Tuesday evening next, February 4, 1896. The REVIEW expresses its best wishes for the happiness of both the young people.

Captain John C. Gerbig, commander of Co. C, eighth regiment national guard has resigned his commission. It is said efforts are being made to induce him to reconsider his purpose of resigning. Capt. Gerbig has served most acceptably and efficiently as commander of company C, and the boys are loath to lose him.

The Hudson brothers who had been conducting a meat market on Market street, near the public square, have closed their business and will leave town. Both are excellent, kind-hearted business men, honorable and upright in all their dealings and as accommodating as business men could be. It is to be regretted that they are leaving town. It is said they will locate in Harrisburg.

Miss Francis E. Martin, daughter of A. L. Martin, proprietor of the West Point Hotel, and Charles T. Shreiner were married by Rev. Herbert Alleman Monday, January 20, 1896. The bride is a most estimable young lady and she and her husband have the best wishes of a host of friends for a useful and happy life together. Mr. Shreiner is to be congratulated upon his choice of a companion for life.

From the Shelby, Iowa, News, we learn that C. R. Benedict, a Fulton county boy, has been chosen as private secretary to Speaker Byers of the Iowa legislature. Mr. and Mrs. Benedict and daughter Anna will make their home in Des Moines this winter. The publisher of the REVIEW is pleased, in this instance as in all others, to note the advancement of his friends whom he remembers when they were school boys.

On Thursday morning, January 23rd, at 11 o'clock, Rev. W. H. Washinger united Howard Lippy, son of ex-Councilman Henry Lippy and Miss Cora A. Pogue, daughter of John Pogue, at the residence of the bride's brother, John A. Pogue, on South Second street. After a brief bridal journey the newly married couple will take up their residence on Prospect street. The young people have the good wishes of hosts of friends that they may live long and happily together.

W. A. Reed, of Hamilton township, drove to town Saturday afternoon and tied his horse to a hitching post on New England Hill. When ready to go home he found his team gone. He went home but it was not there. The next day he learned that the horse had broken loose and followed another team to Michael Coble's about four miles west of town. The drivers of the other team happened to look back and discovered the horse following them without a driver. They put the animal in Mr. Coble's barn where Mr. Reed found him.

Rev. W. H. Washinger, of the First U. B. church, had two weddings on hand Thursday evening, January 23. One was that of Howard S. Ely and Miss Maud Kunkle, both of Chambersburg, which took place in the First U. B. church. The other was that of John G. Geyer and Miss Hannah C. Schaal, daughter of John H. Schaal, at the U. B. parsonage. Mr. Geyer had already provided a home for his bride and at their new residence on Kennedy street a reception was held later in the evening, where many friends assembled to wish the couple joy in their new relation. The four young people thus made happy are all estimable and have the hearty good wishes of many friends for happy and useful lives.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Items of Interest About You and Our Friends and Those Whom We All Know.

Joseph Foltz of Lurgan, was a business visitor at the REVIEW office Wednesday, and by his kindness of heart relieved the publisher of a very embarrassing situation as to delivering job work. Mr. Foltz has our hearty thanks for his kindness.

D. R. Ferguson and wife, Doylesburg, were visitors to this side of the mountains yesterday. Mrs. Ferguson remained in Shippensburg while Mr. Ferguson came to Chambersburg to look after business matters here. He took occasion to advance his subscription to the REVIEW a year ahead.

J. F. Johnston of Webster Mills, Fulton county, was a pleasant caller at the REVIEW office on Thursday of last week. Mr. Johnston is a member of the State Board of Agriculture and had been attending the meeting of the board at Harrisburg. He says the board was unfairly treated by the last legislature, but that the farmers will look out for their interests at the next elections.

George W. Kreichbaum who farms the Geogre Etter farm near Lemaster, was in town Wednesday and manifested his appreciation of the REVIEW by leaving a big round dollar at the office. Mr. Kreichbaum's son Charlie will not be 13 years old until Ground Hog Day, and he weighs 150 pounds. As Mr. Kreichbaum is not the kind of a man to tamper with the scales we are fully satisfied as to the truthfulness of his statements concerning the weight of his boy. Who has another boy of the same age and weight?

Hurt in a Fall From a Tree.

James Leberknight who resides above the Children's Home, was painfully hurt Tuesday while trimming a shade tree in the yard of his brother-in-law, John Shaffer, West King street. While sawing off a large limb he was thrown to the pavement quite a distance below. His left arm was broken and he received a number of other injuries about the head and body. It is not thought any of his injuries will be permanent, but he will be confined to the house for some time.

In Register and Recorder Ledy's Office.

Letters of administration have been granted this week to J. C. Higgins of Fort Loudon, in the estate of Sarah Higgins, late of Peters township, deceased.

Also, Griffin Taylor and Matthew Anderson on the estate of Timothy Anderson, late of Antrim township, deceased.

Also, letters testamentary to Martin O. Binkley and Geo. B. McLellan Binkley on the estate of Jacob Binkley, late of Antrim township, deceased.

Passenger Wreck on the N. & W.

A special excursion train southward bound was wrecked on the Norfolk and Western railroad near Riverton, Va., on Friday night. A quantity of rock rolled down upon the track, throwing the engine upon one side and the baggage car upon the other. Three Pullman cars were also involved in the wreck and all were destroyed by fire. A colored porter from New York was killed—burned up in the wreck. This is thought to be the only life lost. The only injuries any of the passengers sustained were slight. Engineer Long was injured about the head and face, but he is the only one of the trainmen hurt.

A Horrible Affair in Pittsburg.

Mary, aged five years, and Norah, aged three years, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Steele of No. 102 South Sixteenth street, Pittsburg, were burned to death and Mrs. Steele sustained probably fatal injuries in jumping from the second-story window of their home about nine o'clock on Monday night. Two other children escaped harm by their mother lowering them in a sheet from the window into the hands of those below. Mr. Steele was absent at work. Mrs. Steele and her four children, ranging in age from six months to seven years, were in the second-story front bedroom. The children were playing when the lamp was accidentlly upset and exploded.

A New Gun and Hunting Club.

The Fulton Democrat has the following bit of local sporting news: "Last week a number of sporting men of McConnellsburg and vicinity met in the office of the Fulton Republican and organized the above named club. Francis M. Taylor was made president; Alvin L. Sipes, vice president; M. W. Nace, secretary; and Daniel L. Grissinger, treasurer. The club possesses three expert blue rock traps and expects to secure permanent grounds on which to hold weekly shoots. We are informed that the club would like to hear from similar clubs in neighboring towns, with the intention of making a sociable match, to be held here or anywhere that the club may agree upon."

A New Trick on the Grain Merchants.

The Hagerstown Herald tells the following: "On the 20th of December last a man who in appearance looked like a farmer, walked into the office of a prominent grain merchant of this city and asked what was being paid for wheat. Upon being told the market price he said he would sell a load and that he would haul it in the next few days. Before taking his departure he asked the merchant if he could advance him $15 on the wheat. The money was handed him without the least suspicion on the part of the dealer. The man gave his name and left, since which time nothing has been seen nor heard of him or the load of wheat."

A similar trick was played on one of Chambersburg's dealers, in which the man not only got some money but a lot of grain bags as well. He did not get as much money, however, as the Hagerstown man did.

Much Diphtheria In Lancaster.

The New Era says: Diphtheria still continues here, with little or no signs of abatement. Hardly a week passes but we are called upon to record deaths from this terrible disease, and a good many cases now prevail. At No. 220 Howard avenue, a home for children supported by the State Aid Society, are nine children with the disease. Dr. Kline is the attending physician, and a few days ago he called in Dr. D. R. McCormick to administer anti-toxin. The cases now being treated with it are in a very satisfactory state and the little patients bid fair to recover. Two of the nine children afflicted are twelve years of age, and the others are between the ages of two and a-half and six years.

A number of our physicians are using anti-toxin with marked success, but its use is not as general as the Board of Health desires. They furnish it free in all cases where the family where it exists is too poor to pay for it. The number of diphtheria cases reported to the Health officers this month is very large.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

Norman F. Taylor died on Friday at the home of his mother, South Main street, of consumption, after a lingering illness, in the 17th year of his age. He had been in the employ of Holar and Nace, dry goods merchants, North Main street, and was esteemed by his employers as an estimable young man. His remains were buried at Edenville on Monday. There is much sympathy with his widowed mother as she lost her husband not many months ago from the same disease.

* * *

Mrs. John McCullough died at her home in Mercersburg Tuesday morning after a lengthy illnesss, in her 56th year. She was an estimable lady and greatly beloved by all who knew her. She is survived by her husband, two daughters and two sons. She was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church for many years. The funeral took place today.

Decision Against Gettysburg Trolley.

The first opinion of Justice Peckham, the new member of the United States Supreme Court, was in the case involving the right of the government to condemn the real estate of the Gettysburg Electric Railway company as a part of the national park located upon the Gettysburg battleground. The court below had decided that the act of congress authorizing the establishment of the park, in so far as it applied to the condemnation of private property was unconstitutional, and that there was no right under it to condemn.

Justice Peckham's decision reversed this, deciding the law to be valid and sustaining the condemnation proceedings. He departed from the general rule of the court in that he did not outline the opinion, contenting himself with the announcement of the bare result. The case is an important one, as it extends considerably the authority of the general government in condemnation proceedings.

Henry Watterson's Lecture.

The lecture which Mr. Watterson will deliver here Monday evening next, was delivered in the Auditorium in Chicago on the 12th of last February in commemoration of the 86th anniversary of Mr. Lincoln's birth.

The great hall—the most capacious in the world—was packed from pit to dome by an eager throng of enlightened and appreciative people, who had come from far and near to hear the distinguished Kentucky orator—a Confederate soldier and a representative Southern statesman—lay upon the altar of American manhood the tribute of chivalric patriotism. The Hon. Robert Todd Lincoln, the sole surviving son of Abraham Lincoln, and members of his family, occupied one of the boxes. Great was the expectation, and it was not disappointed. For two hours, amid constant and enthusiastic applause, Mr. Watterson held his audience, and, at the close, every one felt that, for the first time, he had seen and known the wonderful man whose weird life-story the eloquent Kentuckian had so vividly told.

Another Veteran Gone.

EDITOR FRANKLIN REVIEW:—I have just learned of the death of one of the oldest citizens of St. Thomas township, William Conner, a man that lived to be away up in the eighties, and a man who lived an honest life, and a man who was a patriot, which is more than can be said of some other people that want to be our law makers. It is one of the shames of our time and day that a man like William Conner who belonged to the home guard of St. Thomas, was captured by General Stuart in 1862 with the musket in his hands, was taken to Richmond, Virginia, and was put in Libby Prison and kept there for, I think, about eighteen months, and when exchanged was sent home without a dollar of money for his patriotism. The ones that ran away and kept out of danger sneered at him for being patriotic. And among all the men that we have sent from Franklin county to represent us at Harrisburg, we did not have one to offer a bill to give this patriot a small pension in his old days. But they had used him and were done with him, so is the gratitude of our great men.

WM. D. DIXON.

St. Thomas, Pa., Jan. 27, 1896.

C. V. Normal Notes.

Everything is in a prosperous condition. The classes are doing excellent work. The first section of the Senior class has completed Cæsar and has taken up Cicero.

Quite a number of students entered at the opening of the Fall term, and all the rooms have been engaged, in advance, for the Spring term.

The grading of the grounds will be continued through the winter and will likely be completed by the first of June.

A very costly fountain will be placed in front of the main entrance. It will be dedicated to the memory of the class of '96, and will add much to the appearance of the campus.

The new member of the faculty, Prof. Ezra Lehman, is very much liked by the students. He is an excellent instructor and uses his vast store of knowledge to advantage.

Miss Waldo, vice principal of the model school, was called to her home in New York by the sudden illness of her father.

The lecture course, so far, has been a most excellent one, and is proving to be a great benefit to the school.

MYSTIC.

Free Lunch Not Allowed.

Judge Biddle, of Cumberland county, on Monday heard some of the applications for license at Carlisle. Prior to hearing the applicants, the Judge referred to the good effect of his order of last year relative to closing the bars at 10.30 p. m., and said he had reason to believe it had been observed. Continuing he added:

We desire also to state that the system of having free lunch at a licensed house will hereafter be considered as a violation of the spirit of the license law, which does not sanction the offering of any inducement to people to buy and drink intoxicants. In a paper read and filed at the license court one year ago, after stating that a landlord should not treat others at his bar or permit others to treat him, we made the following statement which embodies our interpretation of the law upon this subject: 'Licenses are granted for the accommodation of the public in order that properly qualified persons who want liquor may get it; but the license is not justified in tempting or encouraging persons to consume liquor in his house.' There has evidently been a supposition that this language only applied to the matter of 'treating,' but such is not the case, for we designed it to be understood in its broadest sense, and in the future we will cansider that all persons interested have had notice of its real meaning.

In Holy Wedlock.

Yesterday, Wednesday, January 29, 1896, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, in the Presbyterian church in Fannettsburg. Dr. Clarence Chritzman of Welsh Run and Miss Edith Flickinger, daughter of the late Dr. John S. Flickinger, were joined in matrimony by the bride's pastor, Rev. J. Smith Gordon. The number of invited guests reached nearly if not quite four hundred persons. The bride was given away by her brother, J. Max Flickinger. The groom's best man was Prof. Shartle of Mercersburg. The lady attendants of the bride were Miss Woods of Carlisle, Misses Grace and Madge McAllen and the Misses Gordon, daughters of Rev. J. Smith Gordon. The bride and her lady attendants were richly and beeomingly attired and made a very handsome appearance. The groom wore the conventional dress suit. The marches when the bridal party entered the church before the ceremony and left it afterward, were delightfully and skillfully rendered by Miss Mame Kegerreis.

The interior of the church, and especially about the chancel, was tastefully decorated with choice flowers potted and cut. The bride received many presents both useful and costly as tokens of the warm estimation in which she is held by many friends.

After the ceremony and a short time spent in receiving greetings and congratulations, the newly wedded couple drove to Richmond where they took the train for the east. They will spend some days in Washington, D. C., Philadelphia and other points, after which they will be given a reception at the home of the groom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Chritzman at Welsh Run.

On Tuesday evening the bride's brother, J. Max Flickinger, and his wife gave his sister a delightful parting reception at his home. Thirty-five guests were present and partook of a sumptuous supper and spent the evening in a very pleasant social fashion.

The occasion was probably the most brilliant of the kind ever held in Fannettsburg. The social standing of the contracting parties, the beauty and accomplishments of the bride who is known and loved in every home in the community in which she grew up from childhood, the professional promise of the young gentleman who has won so worthy a companion—all tended to make the occasion one long to be remembered by the many friends present.

May the united lives that have begun so auspiciously be long continued to bless the happy couple thus solemnly joined together.

Within a few weeks Dr. and Mrs. Chritzman will take up their residence in Greencastle, where he will engage in the practice of medicine.

The B. & O. Has a New President.

John K. Cowen, general counsel of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, and Representative in Congress from the Fourth Maryland district, was on Saturday elected president of the Baltimore and Ohio to succeed Mr. Charles F. Mayer, who resigned in November. Mr. Cowen was decided upon as a compromise between the factions in the board favoring Maj. Alexander Shaw and Second Vice President Thomas M. King.

THE SCOTLAND SCHOOL.

How a Newspaper Reporter Sees It.—What is Done With Veterans' Children.

It would seem from the following that a member of the Harrisburg Star-Independent staff had been to the Scotland school on the occasion of the visit of the commission to that institution last week, as the following is taken from that paper in its issue of Saturday evening last.

The first quarter of the soldiers' orphan school at Scotland has just been completed, and the commission which met at Scotland this week was delighted with the splendid work which is being done at that institution by General Charles L. Young, the able superintendent, and his wife, Mrs. Cora Day Young, the matron, who has ingratiated herself into the hearts of all the pupils. This institution, although open only three months, and several departments less than one month, is better established and doing more efficient work than many similar institutions in this country. That the school is well managed, goes without saying. There is an air of home comfort and cheerfulness about the place, seldom if ever found at public institutions. The 132 boys and 108 girls are unusually polite and well trained. Every one enjoys that freedom which makes them feel that they are rather considered young men and women than boys and girls unable to take care of themselves. General Young and his devoted wife are looked upon more like father and mother than superintendent and matron. That cordiality and confidence found at one's home pervades the atmosphere of this institution and all the pupils are healthy, cheerful and contented.

Captain George G. Boyer of 924 North Third street, this city, the financial secretary and treasurer of the Pennsylvania Commission of Soldiers' Orphan Schools, who has devoted so much time and energy, and had so much patience with the creation of the Scotland school, deserves special praise for the interest he has taken and the wonderful work he has already accomplished. He goes to the school almost every week and frequently much oftener, while he is to be found at the soldiers' orphan school department in this city every day. He is untiring in his efforts, and a visit to the above place will prove this. Although the original plan could not be carried out, the state appropriation being cut down and the last session not making another, a splendid work is being carried on at Scotland. The present buildings are only the nucleus of what will in course of a few years be the place where all soldiers' orphans of the state will be educated. Now there are 240 pupils at the school, but when the additional sixteen buildings have been completed, 1,000 or more can be instructed as well as and at about the same cost as the present number.

Recently when a Star-Independent representative visited the Scotland school, an opportunity was given to inspect the workings of the various departments. Dropping in upon the management unexpectedly, the place was found, as it always is under full working order. Every one was busy. Not an idle person was to be seen anywhere and everything was in perfect order and the buildings were as clean as a new pin. The classes were well disciplined and splendid work was being done by the teachers. Indeed, it reminded one of a high or normal school, the instructors and pupils being hard at work and well advanced. The pupils average about 15 years of age and remain at the school two years from the time they enter it. Each one is taught some useful occupation, the object being to give every pupil a good education and at the same time a trade. Among these might be mentioned farming, gardening, engineering, wood working, printing, telegraphy, shorthand, type-writing, tailoring, dressmaking, cooking and baking, shoemaking, and domestic economy by competent teachers. The classes alternate, those who recite during the morning are taught in the industrial departments in the afternoon. A band of thirty-two pieces has been organized and surprised the commission the other day with their good music. It has been engaged to play at the June G. A. R. encampment at Chambersburg. The printing office is in charge of John H. Pomeroy of Chambersburg, who is also editor of the "Industrial School News," a four page, five column paper, which will be published to furnish work for the boys who are learning the printing trade. Work on this paper was begun less than a month ago by boys who never before handled type. The first issue was presented to the commission this week, all the work of which was done by these boys.

An additional appropriation will be necessary to complete the plans for the completion of the Scotland school, and no doubt the next state legislature will be induced to make it. It will be a saving to the state by having the soldiers' orphans of the state all at one school and with the faithfulness with which General Young and his wife have worked this will become the greatest institution of its kind in the country. They came from the soldiers' and sailors' home at Xenia, Ohio, where they made such enviable reputations for themselves in the management of that big institution where there were over 1,000 inmates. The Scotland institution has its own electric light plant, which is operated by engines built by the Harrisburg foundry and machine works, as was also the steam heating system, wash house, laundry, water tank on a tower over 100 feet in height, which supplies the school with excellent water, a convenient and well equipped hospital, which has not yet been used, there having been no illness in the school, two large bathiag pools, one for the boys and another for the girls, all improved sanitary appliances and large porches and well lighted and ventilated rooms and halls. The dormitories or sleeping apartments are sights to behold and the beds would be fit to grace the homes of any Harrisburg family. The dining rooms, offices, halls and all apartments of the building are devoid of the "institution smell" so common in places of this kind. It should be stated that devotional exercises are conducted daily, a regular Sunday school has been organized and preaching services are held almost every week. It is an institution of which Pennsylvania can well be proud, because it is an honor to the state.

Among the Harrisburgers employed at this institution are the following: Miss Mary E. Richardson, teacher of cooking and physical culture; Thomas G. Bering, instructor in wood working department; H. E. Stahler, machinist in laundry, and band leader; Frances Moyer, late cook at the state insane hospital, head cook; James Conrad, night watchman; B. F. Sterner, assistant engineer; H. C. Heiges, baker; J. E. Garberich, cobbler; Miss Kate Stahler, assistant in laundry; William Stewart Fox, male attendant; William H. Stewart of Norristown, chief engineer, is a brother of Adjutant General Stewart.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Lesson For Sunday, February 2.

International Bible lesson for Sunday, February 2, 1896, from Luke 5: 17-26. Title: The Power of Jesus. Golden text: "The Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins." The ministry of Jesus was now fully under way. He had begun and had His greatest success among the plain people of His time and nation and also of those of other nations, whose home was in Palestine. A significant and comforting truth of His ministry is stated in six words: The common people heard Him gladly. The day of His baptism and the weary forty days of His temptation were passed. The witness of the Spirit in the bodily shape—that of a dove—had descended upon Him as He went up out of the Jordan from His baptism and had announced: This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased. This was His authority and from that time for three years "He went about doing good." Already He had done many miracles of healing and other mighty works. The ministry had begun in Galilee, the first miracle in Cana, but He had now been through Galilee, Samaria and Judea and with such power had He wrought that He had excited the envy and hatred of the Jewish doctors and teachers and already their plans had begun by which they hoped to entrap, and eventually destroy, Him.

No teacher had yet appeared among them or of them who was so wise as He, nor had any told them so plainly of their faults and shortcomings. They had not the heart or the disposition to take to themselves the truth that the wounds of a friend are faithful.

Other miracles of His they had heard of besides the one of in today's lesson. But here was an opportunity for many to witness His power in doing good to others. Besides those who had come with a desire to learn and be benefited by His teaching and miraculous power, and besides those who had come through curiosity perhaps, the "Pharisees and doctors of the law" from many sections) probably some of the most notable of those at Jerusalem, who added dignity to the teachings in the great temple—these were also present, but not to approve or receive help, not for any good purpose. He was teaching in a house or in a covered court of a house, it is thought, and the passages and doorways were crowded with people. Four men bring to Him a palsied man, who must be carried on a couch. On account of the great crowd of people they could not get near to Him, so they go upon the low housetop, and, removing the roof or covering of whatever kind it might be they let the man down through the opening at the feet of Jesus.

Now read the lesson carefully and learn how He responds to the faith of the paralytic's friends and to the man's own need of superhuman help. All the malevolence of His enemies could not prevent the cure, nor could they fail to understand what was the source of the power that wrought the cure, but they would not understand.

The weakest soul with Christ on his side is a strong majority over all the allied powers of evil to destroy him. The faith of the four men with that of the paralytic and divine power behind it was more than Jewish learning, hate, or other obstacles that might be put in the way. What a consolation to the believer is the knowledge that He with him is mightier than all that may be opposed to Him.

The man was healed of his physical infirmities but the best of all is the fact that his sins were forgiven. This fact was made known to him; he realized it, and this materially augmented his joy which found expression in glorifying God. The miracle of healing is never performed in these days, many think, but the unmistakable voice assures many of the forgiveness of their sins and this assurance brings more joy than the restoration of sight to the blind, or any other physical cure that may be wrought by any power, human or divine.

Old Glory's Perpetual Youth.

It is a question which no one can answer, what becomes of the flags which fly session after session over the two Houses of Congress. The life of a flag exposed at such a height to the tattering winds naturally cannot be long. Every now and then, after a storm, a great rent is seen in "Old Glory," as it proclaims from the housetop that our statesmen are deliberating. Sometimes the edges only are frayed. Sometimes a stripe is gone, or, perhaps, half the stars may be torn away. Then in a day or two it flies again with all its stripes and its stars, as if it had never suffered by the storm.

I asked what became of the old flags. Nobody knew.

What do you do with them?

Nothing.

They are the same flags. That is, there are no new ones. The old flags are simply mended. There is a patriotic poem in this, "Old Glory" has a perpetual life; that is, the "Old Glory" that presides over the Capitol. When a stripe blows away a new one is put in its place, and the same old flag is pulled to the head of the staff. If it is the blue field and stars that is gone this is reproduced. If only a rent it is darned; if a hole, it is patched. Then another stripe goes, and a new one is added. So on, the old portions are blown away, the newer standing until the new becomes the old in turn and tears away, and in endless revolution the old flag lives on. It is always the same flag, but from year to year its entire texture is changed, and the small bits are blown away by the winds, and other small bits take their place. There is no graveyard for "Old Glory." It has perpetual life. No one can tell when the flag which floats over the Senate was bought. It is still a perfect flag, but no part of what was first drawn to the masthead is now in existence.

WOMAN'S HOUR.

SOMETHING TO INTEREST OUR MOTHERS, WIVES AND SWEETHEARTS.

Household Hints—A Bit of Fashion—Humor and Other Items of Note For The Fair Sex.

An exchange prints these excellent and moderate views on dress reform: "I think one of the greatest aids to dress reform is to encourage the wearing of various styles of dress for different occasions. Let work dresses, to be worn at home, be quite short and loosely fitted, or let one wear the bicycle trousers, if liked. Encourage the wear of divided skirts. For walking in cities and for traveling let the dress clear the ground well. There should be no extra trimming to catch dust, and the general effect should be one of trimness. Long dresses might be worn upon ceremonious occasions. The more diverse the styles, the less conspicuous real dress reform will be."

Miss Harriet Hosmer has so long held a high rank as a sculptor that it may be difficult for those who have never met her to imagine her in any character but that of the successful artist. She is, however, one of the most charming of raconteuses, and her pretty and piquant stories, whether told in Italian or in English, are sure to be received with applause, and she adds to their effectiveness by her ready use of the gestures so familiar to all who know the Italians. Miss Hosmer dresses in a quaint, old-fashioned style, and her hair, which is still abundant, and shows more of brown than of gray, she wears gathered into a net in the way that school girls used to dress theirs 30 and 40 years ago.

Mrs. M. B. Grffith is the daughter of a Confederate officer killed during the war leaving a destitute widow of 22 with three small children. A fine musical education received in happier days, was turned to account, and Mrs. Griffith was trained for the same profession by her mother, and has followed it successfully for years. During the summer of 93 Mrs. Griffith visited the World's Fair and, for the first time in her life, heard a chime of bells. In her enthusiastic pleasure over this new experience she sought the bell tower and made the acquaintance of Professor Burbridge, the player, who, finding her interested, explained the method of playing and writing the music. Two days remained of her visit, during which she was permitted to play tunes on the bells, to her great delight. She thought no more of the incident in her busy home life until, shortly before the opening of this Exposition, she received word from the Commissioners that, upon consulting Professor Burbridge, he had recommended her as a ringer for their bells. Thus far a peculiar interest attaches to her position, this being the first chime of bells ever heard within the State of Georgia.

During the short time allowed her before the opening of the Exposition she wrote a repertoire of one hundred pieces for the bells, some of which may be heard each day ringing out over the grounds. Mrs. Griffith told us of an incident which had occurred to her in the rather monotonously recurring days of her life in the tower, which, told in her pretty Southern way, was so delightful, I shall endeavor to reprodude it here. The 7-year-old-son of Mrs. Griffith spends many days with her, wandering out into the grounds when tired, and being recalled to her by a tune from the bells. One afternoon, Mrs. Griffith forgetting for the nonce her boy, locked the tower and strolled away, not proceeding far before remembering her charge. She hastened back, expecting to find him awaiting her on the tower stairs. Instead, there stood an old gentleman gazing out over the darkening grounds, lit up here and there by forerunners of the electric lights so soon to transform the scene, to whom Mrs. Griffith said: "Oh, sir! have you seen a small boy about yer, with beautiful brown eyes and a little red necktie?" The gentleman had not and was somewhat surprised to have the anxious mother unlock the tower doors, explaining she "must ring for him." Presently out from the tower floated the notes of "Home Sweet Home," and the old gentleman watching below saw a small boy fly across the plaza and up the tower stairs. The sweet, safe shelter of mother's arms attained, the small boy panted out: "I'd borrowed a nickel and was starting for the city, when I heard the bells and I said: 'Nobody can play like that but my mamma an' so I came back.'" Mrs. Griffith found under the tower door next morning the card of the old gentleman and on it was written: "The little boy of 7 was not the only one who had tears on his cheeks when you played 'Home, Sweet Home.'"—Woman's progress.

Mrs. Jeannette Halford Benedict, the daughter of Major E. J. Halford, ex-President Harrison's private secretary, has obtained a divorce from her husband, W. T. Benedict, at Omaha. The couple were married in England about two years ago, and at that time Benedict was a man of considerable wealth, much of which he lost by the failure of a bicycle works in Boston. It was on one of their European trips that there was a final quarrel and the result was that soon after she went to Omaha with her father, she began the proceedings for a divorce. The grounds alleged are desertion and cruelty. Benedict made no opposition. The divorce is a good riddance for an estimable woman.

A Rat on Guard.

The shrewdness and sagacity of aged members of the rodent family have been demonstrated in numberless instances, but an incident recently witnessed by Superintendent Tyler, of the city hall, is worthy of remark. The yard of a house adjoining a stable on Seventeenth street, above Fairmount avenue, has been infested with rats for a long time, and a few days ago a member of the family set a large wire trap in the yard. Mr. Tyler was seated in the rear room of a Grayson street house and watched results with great interest. First one rat scudded across the grass and took an observation. In another minute a dozen little rats came trooping along with the evident intention of sampling the cheese. Just then a lean, long, gray old rat, with his tail chopped off, probably from a previous experience with traps, appeared and chased all the little rats away. The old fellow kept watch all the afternoon and effectually prevented a single rat, young or old, from entering the trap.—Philadelphia Record.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world and tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, &c.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson; majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.

Special Offer to Ledger Readers.

The PUBLIC LEDGR has had prepared a large Post Office, County, Township, and Railway Map of Pennsylvania complete to date. This map is given free to subscribers for two months to the Daily Edition or one year to the Saturday (weekly) Edition of the LEDGER.

The map, which has on its reverse side a complete map of the United States, has been adopted by numerous school districts in the State, and is the best and latest map issued. It is worth much more than the price of subscription but is given away freely to subscribers to introduce the paper to their notice in the firm belief that those who become acquainted with the merits of the New LEDGER will not be willing to give it up.

During 1896 the PUBLIC LEDGER'S former high place in journalism will be not only maintained, but advanced by improvements in every department, in the extension of its news service, literary attractions, and special features. To enable the publisher to make the proposed improvements, and to meet the steadily and rapidly growing circulation of the LEDGER, Messrs. Hoe & Co. have constructed for it and are now erecting four new Sextuple Presses of the latest and most approved design. These presses will increase the facilities for rapid printing 25 per cent., enhance the typographical appearance of the paper, and give more distinct impressions.

The LEDGER is first of all a newspaper giving all the news of the day, classified and in complete form. In the PUBLIC LEDGER every statement is verified, its news is therefore thoroughly reliable.

Outside of its news department (which includes special correspondence from all the important cities and towns in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware) the LEDGER is an illustrated family newspaper of exceptional interest and value, giving special attention to domestic affairs, religious news and comment, social events, games, sports, the fashions of the day, literary, art, farm and garden, scientific and labor notes, building society notes, etc.

To its Special New York and Washington correspondence, long since rendered famous, it now adds letters from the chief Capitols of Europe.

Its financial news and market reports are complete and reliable.

The Saturday issue is a great compendium of every phrase of social life, containing reading matter to suit every taste, compiled specially for the Saturday Edition of the LEDGER. Its treatise on the International Sunday School lesson is alone worth the price of subscription.

Its classified advertisements are as interesting as news and as widely read. The public has for years made the PUBLIC LEDGER its chief vehicle for the announcements of births, marriages, and deaths.

Agents wanted; liberal commissions paid. Address Circulation Department the LEDGER for terms.

WRITE FOR RATES FOR CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS. SUBSCRIPTION PRICES AS FOLLOWS:

The DAILY LEDGER (Sunday excepted), by mail, to any address in the United States or Canada, 50 cents per month; $6.00 per year.

Saturdays LEDGER (weekly), a great home journal, which should be in every country home, $1.00 per year.
